Spain. Instituto geográfico y catastral (1825-1931)

By Royal decree of April 3, 1925, the Instituto geográfico y estadístico was dissolved. The statistical services remained with the Ministerio de trabajo, comercio e industria, to which they had been transferred in 1922. The Instituto geográfico y catastral services were reorganized as the Instituto geográfico y catastral, constituted a dependency of the Presidencia del Consejo de ministros by Royal decree of March 6, 1928. By Decree of Nov. 3, 1928, it was transferred to the Ministerio de trabajo y previsión; in 1930 it returned to the Presidencia del Consejo de ministros. In 1931 it united with the Servicio general de estadística to form the Instituto geográfico, catastral y de estadística.

Created by Decree of June 19, 1873, which united the Instituto geográfico with the Dirección general de estadística. Under the Ministerio de Fomento until 1900, when it was transferred to the Ministerio de Instrucción pública y bellas artes. In 1922 the statistical services were separated from the Instituto and transferred to the Ministerio de trabajo, comercio e industria under the name of Dirección general de estadística, later Jefatura superior de estadística, later Servicio general de estadística. By royal decrees of April 3, 1925, and March 6, 1928, the Instituto was dissolved and superseded by the Instituto geográfico y catastral, a dependency of the Presidencia del Consejo de ministros.

Spain. Junta general de estadística.

Created by Royal decree of Nov. 3, 1856, as a dependency of the Presidencia del Consejo de ministros, with title Comisión de estadística general del reino. Name changed to Junta general de estadística by Royal decree of April 21, 1861. In 1865, the Junta was divided into a Dirección general de operaciones geográficas and a Dirección general de estadística, superseded in 1866 by a Secretaría de trabajos geográficos and a Sección de estadística. The budget law of 1869/70 created a Dirección general de estadística, which began to function July 1, 1869. Decree of Sept. 12, 1870 provided for the Dirección general de estadística, an Instituto geográfico and a projected Junta consultiva de estadística. This last was never established. Instead a Junta consultiva de estadística y del Instituto geográfico was created in 1873.
